

You get up off your mat...and walk outside.

And outside is a cave, and at the entrance is Kit Fisto. He says to you: "I have been watching you. Your skills with a light saber are unique and unequalled....You're ready to build your own....but first, you need a crystal to power it. "

"Inside the cave, your crystal awaits you.

You must travel deep inside the cave to find it. But you must be back by sunset, or the cave.....will be sealed.

You begin to worry.

Kit says, "I can sense your fear. You must work against it....for fear is the path to the dark side."

You close your eyes.....take a deep breath.....and say, "OK....I'm ready."

You walk inside the cave.

You walk for about 10 minutes, admiring the different shapes and textures of the rocks. You feel the dampness in the walls, and listen to the dripping of water.

You stop. You have come to a fork in the path. "What am I going to do," you think. You're running out of time, and if you don't hurry, you'll be trapped inside this cave forever.

Then you remember something Master Yoda once said: The force will always guide your path. You close your eyes and reach out with the force.

You sense something on your left and set down the path. You walk some more. This part of the cave is made of ice, and the ice is so clear, it almost looks like glass. You're surrounded by beautiful blocks of ice, jutting out of the ground.

And then you see something glowing in the distance, on top of a block of ice: Your crystal. "I've found it," you think to yourself. You begin to climb up the block of ice. It's big and it takes you a few minutes to reach it. You almost fall. Finally, you make it to the top. You see your crystal and you grab it. It's a beautiful turquoise blue color. It seems to glow even brighter in your hand.

You begin to climb back down the block of ice. Once you make it down, you realize that you're almost out of time; it's nearly sunset. You bolt back the way you came. The whole way back, as you run, you feel confident. You know you can do this.

You see the entrance, run outside, and skid to a halt....just as the cave seals behind you.

"Good...very good," says Kit Fisto. "You have done well. Here," he says, and hands you a light saber handle. "Insert your crystal in the chamber in the center." You do as you're told and press a button on the side. A brilliant blue light shoots out of the handle. "You have done excellent. We will train tomorrow. Now go get some rest."

You thank Fisto and walk back into the room, lay down on your mat....

...and open your eyes.
