

Trauma Releasing Exercises (TRE)

Certification Training | Module 1

June 7-9, 2019

Portland, OR

Lynea Gillen, LPC, RYT & Susan Shifman, TRE Certification Trainer

$395 Early bird rate ($450 after 4/1/18)

Graduate Credit, CEUs, PDUs & Clock Hours available. Certificate of training hours provided.

NEW TOOLS . . . NEW HOPE . . .

Learn TRE, a simple and effective tool for you and your clients/students to reduce stress and release. Using six yoga-like exercises, TRE releases deep tension from the body by creating gentle waves of self-controlled movement.

Since stress and trauma reside in, and manifest through, the body's physiology, researchers like Bessel van der Kolk MD and Bruce Perry MD, recommend body-based interventions, like TRE, to release stress, regulate the nervous system, and develop a sense of safety and control. TRE is also an excellent complement to cognitive- and behavior-based therapies.

In this course you will learn:

- The basic neurophysiology of stress and trauma, how shaking and flight, flight and freeze reactions are "intelligent" physiological responses to stress
- Porges Polyvagal Theory and how to mitigate the stress response.
- Basic proficiency in leading individual and group TRE sessions with youth and adults, in school, therapeutic, home and agency settings.
- Skills to manage your own stress, trauma and reactions from personal and professional experiences – benefiting your work, your relationships, and your well-being.

UNIVERSITY OF THE PACIFIC

Graduate credit, PDUs, CEUs and CEUs available.

Course qualifies toward TRE Certification.

Register at YogaCalm.org

Questions? info@yogacalm.org