

Water Warrior

Autumn Peltier

Autumn is a Canadian water activist who advocates for clean drinking in First Nations communities and across Mother Earth. She comes from Wikwemikong First Nation/Manitoulin Island and is of Ojibway/Odawa heritage. Autumn has travelled far and wide to carry the message of the importance of clean water and the sacredness of water. She spoke at the United Nations World Water Day on March 22, 2018, was honoured by the Assembly of First Nations as a water protector, and recently travelled to Stockholm, Sweden, for World Water Week in August 2018, invited by the United Nations as a keynote speaker. Autumn has also been honoured by the Ontario Lieutenant Governor with the Sovereign's Medal for Volunteers for her exceptional advocacy and for being an exceptional conservationist. Autumn was also recognized and honoured as an Ontario Junior Citizen for her advocacy work and won a WE Day award for Youth in Action (12 and under). Autumn continues her work for access to clean water for Indigenous People across the world.
